Katrine

By ELINOR MACARTNEY LANE

Author of
Nancy
Stair

KATRINE is the first novel which Mrs. Lane has published since her brilliant story of "Nancy Stair." Those who have read both books agree in recognizing KATRINE as the greater successor of a great romance. In KATRINE, as in "Nancy Stair," a beautiful, magnetic woman takes the leading part. This is a romance of picturesque love-making, of separation, of the woman's triumph through her natural gifts, of a man's awakening and his battle with realities, and, finally, it is a romance not only of a woman's triumph, but of an all-conquering love.

Leading Spring Fiction

SIMEON TETLOW'S SHADOW February

By JENNETTE LEE, Author of "Uncle William," etc.

This is the story of a Man and a Railroad—the stir and thrill of life in a great corporation run through it—and a vivid picture of the real things of modern business life—with glimpses of a beautiful home life in a little village, and days of healing of mind and body out in the silence of the woods.

The human quality of the book places it quite beyond any ordinary standard.

THE BIOGRAPHY OF A SILVER FOX BY ERNEST THOMPSON SETON

All the magic of the wild, free life of the open is caught and held in these pages—the story from his cubhood to his splendid prime, of that aristocrat of foxes, Domino Reynard; his happy, adventurous, sometimes tragic life among the Goldur Hills; the romance of his life-union with Snowyruft.

The telling is Mr. Seton's ripest and best; and the altogether delightful and fascinating narrative is made still more delightful and fascinating by over one hundred of the author's characteristic illustrations. Cover design, title-page, and general make-up by Grace Gallatin Seton.

OLD LADY NUMBER 31

By LOUISE FORSSLUND

This is the homely, humorous, pathetic kind of a tale that touches the heart, and keeps the reader's lips smiling and his eyes wet. It is the story of an old husband and wife who come to face a divided path—the old folks' home for one, the poorhouse for the other.

How the "old ladies" adopt Abe; how, as the days go by, the situation develops both humor and pathos; how at last the old couple's poverty is changed to modest wealth, yet the "home" claims them—these things are delightfully told.

THE WILES OF SEXTON MAGINNIS

By MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN

Just the cleverest delineation of Celtic character, the jolliest book of Irish-American life and adventure in American literature. That delicious chap, Maginnis, is the hero, with his adoring wife Mary Ann, their children, and his mother-in-law, Herself, chief of a wide and always delightful dramatis personae.

There is a smile on every page and a laugh in each chapter.

MR. OPP

By ALICE HEGAN RICE

You'll begin by laughing at Mr. Opp—you'll grow to admire and love him. He does and says some ridiculous things; but he says many things worth weighing; and his days are one uncomplaining surrender of self and self's natural hopes and ambitions to the comforting and making happy of those who have need. Nothing Mrs. Rice has done approaches the whimsical humor, pathos, and genuine heart interest of this story; Mr. Opp is a creation richly worthy of Dickens, and is certain to live as one of the most delicious and appealing characters in American fiction.

Siena: The Story of a Mediæval Commune

By FERDINAND SHEVILL, Professor of History, Chicago University.

Illustrated, $2.50 net. Postpaid, $2.75.

A brilliant and comprehensive account of the history and the art of one of the most interesting cities in the world. Professor Shevill, one of the foremost authorities of the day on his subject, has founded his work largely on original researches. He writes in a vivid and interesting way and treats his subject from every point of view. The book is superbly illustrated and gives a beautiful and striking picture of Siena as it is and was.

England and the English

From an American Point of View.

$1.50 net. Postpaid, $1.60.

A keen, brilliant and sympathetic study of the traits of character which have made the Englishman what he is to-day. He takes up "Sport," "Society," "English Home Life," "Are the English Dull?" etc.

Egoists: A Book of Supermen

By JAMES HUNEKER.

$1.50 net. Postpaid, $1.60.

This new book, the first by Mr. Huneker in three years, is wholly devoted to those modern poets and prose masters whose writings embody the individualistic idea as opposed to altruistic and socialist sentiments. It contains brilliant studies of such men as Barrès, Anatole France, Stirner, Hellö, Blake, Nietzsche, Ibsen, and Stendhal.

The Churches and the Wage Earners

By C. BERTRAND THOMPSON.

$1.00 net. Postpaid, $1.10.

The most interesting study of a much discussed problem that has appeared. The sub-title, "A Study of the Cause and Cure of Their Separation," shows the point of view from which the author starts and the constructive nature of his work. The book is supplied with a bibliography, and is altogether a stimulating, clear and able discussion, constructive as well as analytical, of a very present problem.

Social Organization: A Study of the Larger Mind

By CHARLES HORTON COOLEY.

$1.50 net. Postpaid, $1.60.

A brilliant study of the development and influence of the various forms of intercourse among men discussed under such headings as Communication, The Democratic Mind, Social Classes, Public Will, Institutions, etc., and treated from the mental rather than material point of view.

The Problem of Human Life

By RUDOLPH EUCKEN, Professor of Philosophy at University of Jena and Winner of This Year's Nobel Prize. Translated by W. S. Hough and W. R. Boyce Gibson.

$3.00 net. Postpaid, $3.30.

An able and brilliant presentation of the various philosophies of life as viewed by the great thinkers from Plato to the present time. The book is in three parts, Hellenism, Christianity and the Modern World, concluding with a suggestive and profoundly interesting chapter on "The Present Situation."

History of Contemporary Civilization

By CHARLES SEIGNOBOS. Translated by Professor A. H. Wilde.

$1.25 net.

A history of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries by the author of "The History of Mediæval and Modern Civilization." His method as well as his style is marked by perfect clearness, effective arrangement, concision of statement and great literary charm.

READY IN APRIL

The Chippendales

By ROBERT GRANT.

$1.50

In this remarkable novel, the most important fiction book of this spring, Judge Grant has told a story of the conflict of old traditions and point of view with the new methods of to-day. Blaisdell, a modern, hustling man of business, forces his way into the inner circle, where the Chippendales, an old Boston family, are firmly entrenched. Amusing and dramatic situations and brilliant talk, full of keen humor, form a background for a splendid love story and a vigorous plot that shows the good and bad of Boston and of the life to-day in a startling way.

The Lodger Overhead and Others

By CHARLES BELMONT DAVIS.

Illus. $1.50

Mr. Davis tells better stories of New York than any one else, and in this new book he deals skilfully with some of the most dramatic and picturesque and hitherto untouched phases of essentially metropolitan life.

READY EARLY IN MAY.

In the Wake of the Green Banner

By EUGENE PAUL METOUR.

Illus. $1.50

A moving epic of the French occupation in Algeria.

Beginning with the native uprising in Morocco, the author takes his characters over the Atlas Mountains until they fall in with the Moslem army encamped in sight of the last outlying oasis held by the French. Here between the spurs of Atlas and Sahara the main action of the story takes place. In his picture of the fighting around the oasis Mr. Metour proves himself a master painter of war.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS

The Christian Doctrine of God

By W. N. CLARKE, D.D., Professor of Theology at Colgate University.

$2.50 net. Postpaid, $2.75.

This new volume in the International Theological Library is an attempt to present the Christian conception of God, his character and his relations to men.

A Working Theology

By ALEXANDER MACCOLL.

75 cents net. Postpaid, 80 cents.

A clear statement of the principles of theology which remain to the modern man of to-day from the controversies of the past and present and which he can use as a basis for his own moral code of life.

The Faith of a Modern Protestant

By Professor WILHELM BOUSSET.

75 cents net. Postpaid, 80 cents.

An inspiring attempt to show what Christian faith, the belief in the Fatherhood of God as proclaimed by Jesus Christ, means for mankind to-day. Religion is approached from the side of vital spiritual experience, it is viewed not as a result of metaphysical enquiry, but as a personal venture, a reaching out of faith into the unknown.

Four Popular Authors

A sane book on the "Emmanuel Movement."

NEW IDEALS IN HEALING

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

Ray Stannard Baker, through his previous books and his widely-read articles in the American Magazine, has gained an immense reading public. Now he attacks what is probably the most vital subject before the people today, and deals with it in an intensely interesting fashion.

He sees into the subject, and all around it, in a way that no one directly connected with the movement could. It is a clear-headed, impartial, sympathetic work. Is it any wonder that this book is popular?

An attractive little volume, with 12 full-page half-tones

FOSTER'S COMPLETE HOYLE

Revised and Enlarged

By R. F. FOSTER

This book, so many years the authority, has been thoroughly revised and brought completely up-to-date. It is well made for the library, as a standard reference work.

Bound in dark blue cloth, 8vo, gold stamp, gilt top, $2.50 net.

"Has the magnetism of personal experience and conviction. . . Tells a lot of important facts and truths about hygiene, many of them new."
—Minneapolis Bellman

GOOD HEALTH AND HOW WE WON IT

By UPTON SINCLAIR AND
MICHAEL WILLIAMS

Sinclair, the popular, forceful writer, and Williams, the well-known health expert and magazine writer, approach this subject from the standpoint of laymen, who have both actually experienced the benefits of of scientifically correct living.

"A simple, helpful treatise that rests on a sound basis of standard scientific research."
—Chicago Record-Herald

It is as well an attractive volume—you have only to show the pictures of the children to any woman to arouse her interest.

The GLORY of the CONQUERED

The Story of a Great Love

By SUSAN GLASPELL

2nd Edition

"The book is indeed everything the publishers claim for it: a novel, grand in conception and powerful with emotional intensity. . . .

"It is frankly and a vowedly a love story.

"The Glory of the Conquered,' as set forth by Miss Glaspell, is something of which to be proud. Let us have many more similiary good, clean, wholesome stories from the same pen, for they make the world better."

—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

DREAMING RIVER

A Love Idyl of the Minnesota Prairie

By BARR MOSES

2nd Edition

The growing popularity of this dollar novel is due to its real quality. It is not a machine-made book, cut and dried and turned out by pattern, but is actually unlike any novel we know of. As the New York Sun says: "If another novel has such a plot, we do not recall it." It richly deserves the remarkable amount of attention and favorable comment it has received from the critics.

Cloth, large 16mo, $1.00

Four Big Novels

Topics of General Interest

Remaking the Mississippi

By John L. Mathews

A readable and vigorous account of what has been done and should be done towards making the great Mississippi waterway system fulfill its possibility as a factor in American industry and transportation. Illustrated. $1.75 net. Postage extra

State Insurance

By Frank W. Lewis

A valuable handbook in which the desirability of state insurance, its effectiveness in other countries, and the peculiar problems connected with it for our own country, are set forth with great vigor and lucidity. An excellent book for wage earners, economists and students of sociology. $1.25 net. Postpaid

Choosing a Vocation

By Frank Parsons

One of the most practical contributions to social welfare work that has lately been published. The book is addressed not only to vocational counselors and advisers, but also to professors of sociology, technical schools, parents, clergymen, managers of large businesses, school teachers, as well as to the philanthropic students and workers directly concerned.

Education in the Far East

By Charles F. Thwing

A readable and interesting study of the relations of education and civilization in Japan, China, India, Korea, the Philippines, and Egypt. Although not an educational book, it will have a special appeal to all who are interested in education.

Human Nature in Politics

By Graham Wallas

In this volume Mr. Wallas analyzes existing forces and tendencies and presents a new statement of the problem of democracy. The fresh light thrown by recent experiments in government upon such problems as the proper position of the expert in legislation and administration, the struggle of interests in politics, and the new possibilities of international relations, forms the subject-matter of several chapters. The author is both a practical politician and a psychologist.

Studies in Christianity

By Borden Parker Bowne

A practical attempt to combine the new theology and the old religion, by a leading American scholar. By clearing up some of the confusion that too often exists in popular religious thought and speech, he gives the best kind of help toward sincerity and naturalness in religion. *$1.50 net. A SELECTION OF NEW SPRING FICTION to be published by

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

READY IN APRIL

Love's Privilege

¶ By Stella M. Düring, author of "Disinherited." This novel recently won a thousand-dollar prize in a leading Chicago newspaper competition, and was pronounced as perhaps the most baffling mystery-story of recent years. The plot is concerned with a murder which absolutely defies solution. Frontispiece in color by Frank H. Desch. 12mo. Cloth, with colored inset. $1.50.

READY IN MAY

The Woman in Question

¶ By John Reed Scott, author of "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," "The Princess Dehra," and "Beatrice of Clare." Mr. Scott's new novel is distinctly modern in tone and theme. The scene this time is laid in the Eastern United States. The story centers in and around Fairlawn Hall, an old mansion with a marvellous garden, where the new master comes with a party of friends to find mystery, misfortune, and love awaiting him.

Illustrated in color by Clarence F. Underwood. 12mo. Decorated cloth, $1.50.

READY IN APRIL

The Winning Chance

¶ By Elizabeth Dejeans. In "The Winning Chance" we know we have a big American novel—we won't say the, although we almost feel like doing so—dealing with a modern problem of such vital interest to all, it cannot help but win its way to great popularity. The story is strikingly original in theme and treatment, and it pictures as never before the big problem of the American Girl who enters upon a business career.

Frontispiece in color by Gayle P. Hoskins. 12mo. Ornamental cloth, $1.50.

READY IN APRIL

Lanier of the Cavalry

¶ By General Charles King, who stands sponsor for many fine army stories, but it is doubtful if he has ever penned a more stirring one than this, his latest romance. The plot is laid at a frontier fort where witty women and brave men are snowed in for months, which isolation is to some extent accountable for the remarkable happenings. Three full-page illustrations by Frank McKernan.

12mo. Decorated cloth, $1.25.

A SELECTION OF SPRING PUBLICATIONS

from the list of

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

Charles Augustus Sainte-Beuve

¶ The fourth volume of the French Men of Letters Series. By George McLean Harper, Professor of English Literature in Princeton University, and author of "Masters of French Literature." Professor Harper believes that Sainte-Beuve is now more than ever acknowledged to be, with Taine and Renan, one of the intellectual triumvirate of modern France, and that he is henceforth to be regarded not merely as the greatest French literary critic, but as one of the world's chief critics in the broad sense—a man who has thrown the light of reason upon all great questions of psychology, morality, religion, politics, and art. With a frontispiece portrait and a bibliography.
12mo. Cloth, paper label, $1.50 net.
Postpaid, $1.60.

The Life of James McNeill Whistler

¶ An entirely new printing of this authorized biography by Elizabeth R. and Joseph Pennell. The International Studio says: "Those, too, who know him only in his paintings, etchings, and lithographs, will learn, through the intimacy of Mr. and Mrs. Pennell's pages, better to understand the deep-souled religion of beauty that inspired all his work. The numerous illustrations, reproducing practically all his important pictures, are beyond praise. Whistler himself would have delighted in this book, and proclaimed it 'all beautiful, distinguished, and charming, as it should be.' We can hear his joyous, vibrant laugh of final triumph." Two volumes. 166 illustrations in half-tone, photogravure, and line. Crown quarto. Half cloth, $10.00 net, per set.

Wild Flowers and Fruits

¶ By George L. Walton, M.D., author of "Why Worry?" A book of charts and groups which will facilitate identification of many flowers and fruits commonly found in the north-eastern section of the United States. The pen and ink illustrations were made direct from fresh specimens by the author.
Two color plates and 86 line drawings.
12mo. Cloth,
$1.50 net.

The Home Garden

¶ By Eben E. Rexford, author of "Four Seasons in the Garden." This book is intended for the use of those who have a little piece of land upon which they would like to grow vegetables and small fruits, but whose knowledge how to go to work in the right way, and what to attempt growing, is limited, because of lack of experience. It contains no theories. It aims to give simply and clearly such information as the writer has gathered from his own experience in gardening, by which he believes others can bring about equally satisfactory results.
Eight full-page illustrations. 12mo.
198 pages. Cloth, ornamental,
$1.25 net. Postpaid, $1.35.

Our Insect Friends and Enemies

¶ By John B. Smith, S.D., professor of Entomology in Rutgers College. The importance of insects and their influence on human life is just coming to be appreciated, and this volume treats of the relations of insects to man, to other animals, to each other, and to plants. Colored frontispiece and 121 line cuts in the text. 12mo.
Cloth, $1.50
net.

Behind the Veil in Persia

¶ By M. E. Hume-Griffith. With narratives of experiences by A. Hume-Griffith, M.D. In a residence of eight years in Persia and Turkish Arabia the author became intimate with a large circle of friends whose life is passed behind the veil, and as the wife of a medical missionary she has had unusual opportunities of winning their confidence and becoming acquainted with their thoughts. As a result her book gives an account of that inner life of the East of which a traveller, however keen-sighted and intelligent, seldom gains more than a passing glimpse. 37 illustrations and a map. 350 pages. Octavo. Cloth, with gilt, $3.50 net.

A British Officer in the Balkans

¶ By Major Percy Henderson, late of the Indian Army. There lies in Eastern Europe one of the most charming districts, as yet unspoiled by tips or exorbitant hotel charges, possessing all the variety of scenery of Norway, the coloring of Italy, with the added glamor of the Orient. Major Henderson has written an intensely interesting record of a lengthy tour through Dalmatia, Montenegro, and Turkey in Austria, Magyarlund, Bosnia, and Hercegovina. The author's account is not that of a hurried traveller, but is the result of careful and appreciative observation. The photographs, taken by Mrs. Henderson, are unique and add greatly to the interest of the book. Fifty illustrations and a map. Octavo. Cloth, gilt top, $3.50 net.

Portugal in 1908

¶ By Ernest Oldmeadow. Portugal has been very much in the public eye recently, due to the sad tragedy that deprived that country of its King and Crown Prince. Furthermore, English and American visitors to Portugal are multiplying rapidly, and as there are practically no works on modern Portugal, this volume should fill a long-felt want.
Many full-page plates.
Royal octavo, 320
pages, cloth, gilt top, $3.50 net.

Manners and Customs in all Lands

¶ By Charles Morris. A continuation of Mr. Morris's "Home Life in All Lands," which was received so popularly that the publishers requested the author to prepare a second volume along the same lines. The book gives interesting details of everyday life in various parts of the world, especially those less known to most of us. Mr. Morris writes entertainingly of the curious customs practiced in many countries, of the quaint manners in vogue in far-away quarters of the world, and on numerous other topics. Fully illustrated. 12mo, cloth, gilt top. $1.50 net.

Self Help for Nervous Women

¶ Familiar talks on economy in nervous expenditure by John K. Mitchell, M.D. Here are plain and helpful talks about food and rest, air and exercise, self-control, discipline, the training of the nervous system, etc., intended for the nervous, for those who apprehend nervousness, and for those who have to do with nervous invalids. 12mo, 202 pages, cloth, $1.00 net. Postpaid, $1.08.

FICTION

THE CHRYSALIS

By HAROLD MORTON KRAMER

Illustrated by Harry C. Edwards. Coated Wrapper in Colors. Price, $1.50

A story that deals with the strongest emotions and passions that humanity can know, and breathing the strong, new life of the great American Northwest that Marcus Whitman saved. A drama of lives and hearts, with a former Yale athlete as the central figure, to whom the heroine says the potent words that name the book: "A chrysalis is an ugly thing, but it contains possibilities that are beautiful. Maybe your heart has been a chrysalis."

JUVENILES

A PAIR OF MADCAPS

By J. T. TROWBRIDGE

Illustrated by Frank T. Merrill. 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.50

It is a noteworthy event to offer a new book by the dean of all American writers for the young, whose hold upon the public has been shown by the universal sense of relief that although sailing for southern Italy in December he did not suffer disaster.

DAVE PORTER AND HIS CLASSMATES

Or, For the Honor of Oak Hall

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER

Fifth Volume of "Dave Porter Series." Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.25

Dave is back at Oak Hall after his thrilling trip to find the father he has never seen. His chums are leaders in the activities of the school, and Dave continues to be the best type of an American schoolboy. Athletic events and jolly fun are constantly mingled, and as evidence that the boys are not at school entirely for that, many take high honors at the close of the year, Dave being prize essayist.

THE RULE OF THREE

A Story of Pike's PeakBy ALMA MARTIN ESTABROOKIllustrated by George Brehm. $1.25

"Multiplication is vexation,
Division is as bad;
The Rule of Three perplexes me —"

So runs the old rhyme, and so, we imagine, any young bachelor would feel, who, like Gavin Langstaff, the hero of this sprightly tale, had to produce a wife on the spur of the moment to satisfy the demands of a maiden aunt, and found himself involved first with two and finally with three charming young ladies each eager to help him out of his difficulty.

"THE RULE OF THREE" is filled with the life and sparkle of the Colorado air. It tickles the fancy and lures the imagination. It is above all a good story!

"THE RULE OF THREE" holds you a willing subject to its lively sway.

Fate and the Butterfly

By FORREST HALSEY.

At last a novel of American society as it really is, neither condoned nor flattered. Startlingly vivid, breathlessly rapid, and undeniably convincing. The butterfly heroine, hounded by fate and hypocritical convention till the final breaking of her beautiful wings, is a genuine addition to American prose fiction.

THE GUN RUNNER

A new romance of modern electricity, the theme this time, in view of the recent Republic disaster, fittingly "wireless." The plot centers around one of those South American revolutions in which, by chance, the wireless operator of the Laminian comes to play a star part; and the whole book is full of that romance of motors and wires, "sounders" and "differentials" for which Stringer is famous.

FAIR WOMEN AT FONTAINEBLEAU

By FRANK HAMEL, author of "Famous French Salons." Fully illustrated with portraits. 8vo, cloth, extra gilt. $3.75 net.

This volume deals with the life of the palace from the personal and historical points of view.

CONTENTS: Visions of Fair Women—Women of the Middle Ages—Duchesse d'Etampes—Diane de Poitiers—Catherine de Medicis—Gabrielle d'Estrées—Marie de Medicis and Henriette d'Entragues Anne of Austria—Christina of Sweden—Marie, Henriette and Louise—Mme. de Montespan and Mme. de Maintenon—The Demoiselles de Nesle and Mme. de Pompadour—Mme. du Barry and Marie Antoinette—Empress Josephine—Helena of Mecklenburg.

FRESH FIELDS AND GREEN PASTURES

By MRS. PANTON, author of "Leaves from a Life." 8vo, cloth, gilt top. $3.50 net.

A new volume of personal reminiscences supplementing the author's remarkable "Leaves from a Life."

NIETZSCHE: HIS LIFE AND WORK

By M. A. MÜGGE, Ph.D. 8vo, cloth, etched portrait. $3.00 net.

This important work is written to help English readers to a better understanding of the writings of the remarkable German thinker. It is neither a polemic nor an apology, but an honest attempt to present the poet-philosopher in a just light. The work is the result of years of study, and takes account of practically all that he has written on Nietzsche.

ROMANCES OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

By G. LENOTRE, author of "The Last Days of Marie Antoinette." Fully illustrated. 2 vols., 8vo, cloth, gilt top. $6.00 net.

M. Lenotre is a master in the art of graphic presentation. In order to judge the actors in the French Revolution correctly, we must picture their environment, steep ourselves in their ideas, enter into the feverish movements which agitated their lives. All these difficult tasks M. Lenotre helps us to accomplish. What a wonderful gallery of portraits these pages set before us! One after another, the leading, secondary, and supernumerary actors in the great drama pass before us—sinister, ludicrous or pathetic. This is history written with the facts set in a romantic atmosphere.

THE BOOK OF GEORGIAN VERSE

Edited by WILLIAM STANLEY BRAITHWAITE, Editor of "The Book of Elizabethan Verse." 16mo, Bible paper, 1000 pp. vignette title page in photogravure, silk marker, cloth, $2.50 net. Full flexible morocco, in box, $4.00 net.

Blue morocco, or ooze leather, gilt edges, $5.00 net. White watered silk, padded, gilt edges, $6.00 net.

THE PERFECT WAGNERITE

By G. BERNARD SHAW. A Commentary on the Ring of the Niblungs. New edition, with an entirely new introduction. 12mo, cloth. $1.25.

A masterly exposition of the story and music of Richard Wagner's Ring des Nibelungen. It is written in Shaw's characteristic style and is considered one of the most brilliant of his achievements. It is a splendid tribute to the great musician's genius and a fine interpretation of his works.

THE ADMIRABLE BASHVILLE

By G. BERNARD SHAW. A play founded on the author's novel "Cashel Byron's Profession," with a note on Prizefighting. 12mo, stiff paper boards, 50 cents net.

LOADED DICE

"No novel of recent years recites a stronger or more virile story or presents it in a more interesting or more convincing manner. This fact is all the more remarkable because 'Loaded Dice' is Mr. Clark's first novel."

Ellery H. Clark

"The interest in the book never ceases for a moment. Not only is the general proposition an unusually absorbing one but the recital of incidents leading ever on to the properly draped climax makes the reader want to turn the pages with increasing rapidity."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

While this little volume contains a comprehensive description of the forms of bridge and the rules of the game corrected by the latest usage, it has not been designed as a book of instruction for beginners. Rather it is intended, the author says, "to elucidate the theory of play and to enforce certain doctrines and conventions which have proved their value."

Bacon, B: Wisner. The modern commentary; the beginnings of Gospel story: a historical-critical inquiry into the sources and structure of the Gospel according to Mark; with expository notes upon the text, for English readers. New Haven, Ct., Yale University Press, 1909. c. 41+238 p. O. cl., *$2.25 net.

Author is Buckingham professor of New Testament criticism and exegesis in Yale University. The text of the Revised Version is used. His work submits the Gospel of St. Mark, the oldest canonical gospel to the "higher criticism," from which have come the richest fruits of modern biblical study. He studies: What was the event which gave rise to the story? Through what phases has the tradition passed to acquire its canonical forms? What was the common starting point from which the varying forms of the tradition diverge? Was it so or was it not so? A few variant readings have been added to those placed in the margin by the Revisers of 1881.

Everybody is talking about the "Emmanuel Movement," but very few understand just what it is, and fewer yet understand its relation to the practice of medicine. Mr. Baker here gives a concise, clear and impartial interpretation of the whole subject. His powers of investigation and his ability for interesting explanations are effectively employed. He first describes succinctly the exact nature of the "Emmanuel Movement" and the seemingly almost miraculous cures by such clergymen as Dr. Worcester. He then shows how the medical profession is reaching out toward the same goal of service. He specially dwells upon the "spiritual unrest" of the day.

Brown, Alice. The story of Thyrsa; with a front. by Alice Barber Stephens. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 327 p. O. cl., $1.35 net.

This tale of New England life begins with a vivid portrait of a New England child of emotional and imaginative nature. A crisis comes in her life for which the reader is wholly unprepared. A youth whom she had known all her life betrayed her and married her sister. A child is born to Thyrsa. She sews her life away to educate him. He mixes with the world, then blames his mother because she does not change her name and readjust her life. The girl the son loves finally again puts hope and courage into Thyrsa. The end is in rhapsodic style. An old friend leaves her house and money, and the story ends with Thyrsa seeing visions of a happy compensating future. Has not appeared as a serial.

Clarke, W.: Newton. The Christian doctrine of God. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 12+477 p. O. (International theological lib.; ed. by C. A. Briggs, D.D., and Stewart D. F. Salmond, D.D.) cl., $2.50 net.

Author is professor in Colgate University, Hamilton, New York. "It is the sole endeavor of this book," he says, "to set forth the Christian doctrine of God for the present day; not the doctrine of the past, or the future, but the thought of God that we may now entertain if we follow the leading of Jesus Christ the revealer."

Dudenev, Mrs. H.: Rachel Lorian. N. Y., Duffield & Co., 1909. c. 346 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The heroine ignorant of life and her own individuality at eighteen marries a man full of ambition and confident of his great achievements. A railway accident on the wedding journeys leaves him a helpless cripple for life. Even before the accident the author has shown a wide difference of temperament in the bridal couple. The husband's savage rebellion against his living entombment is tragically given. The wife is tenderness personified, but the husband's friend comes and her heart awakens. Friend and wife are loyal to the cripple, but he knows; he suffers till his death solves many problems.

Galsworthy, J.: Fraternity. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 6+386 p. D. cl., $1.35 net.

The leading characters are a group of cultured people, related to each other, so refined and repressed that they apparently have lost all knowledge of passion or emotion of any kind. They are imbued with the desire to assist and reform the poor. But they are really so little in sympathy with them that their efforts are generally sad failures, separating them into antagonistic classes more than ever before. The types from the London slums are primitive specimens of vice and poverty. Among the reformers is a self-centered old gentleman who is writing a book about the brotherhood of man and who is a great bore, as his philanthropy goes no further than reading his book to his friends. The novel is an ironical picture of the hopeless lack of fraternity in the world. By the author of "The country house."

For more than sixty years Mr. Gilman has spent his summers in New England villages, and in the chapters of this book he has set down in a meditative way some of the thoughts and feelings inspired by his delightful experiences. The country store and post office, the public library and the town house, the industries and the amusements of the village, all contribute to the variety of the book. Hollis, N. H., furnishes the setting for most of the especially striking features (though the place is not named), and the illustrations are made from photographs of houses and scenes in that town.

Author was formerly principal of the government School of Arts, and keeper of the government art gallery, Calcutta. "The purpose of this book is artistic, not archaeological, but I have ventured," the author says, "to differ entirely from archaeological ideas of Indian fine art, which seem to me to give a completely distorted view of the intentions of Indian artists."

Hussey, Eyre. Polly Winford. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 355 p. D. cl., $1.50.

An Australian girl with a considerable fortune discovers after her father's death that his last wish was that she should go to England and live with two maiden aunts. Their letter of invitation being rather grim and unfriendly, she determines to go to England first and investigate things before taking up her residence with them. She takes the name of "Polly Winford" and obtains board in a rector's family, not far from where her aunts are living. The rector's wife is a very severe person, who criticizes everything the young Australian does, constantly dwelling upon the lack of conventionality in colonial manners. The girl gets mixed up in the gossip and simple life of a small English parish, her mystery being finally penetrated without any dramatic episodes.

In American fields and forests; H: D: Thoreau, J: Burroughs, J: Muir, Bradford Torrey, Dallas Lore Sharp, Olive Thorne Miller; with il. from photographs by Herbert W. Gleason. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. '85-'07. 9+378 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

Contains seventeen representative essays by American writers on nature, selected with a view to presenting a wide range of subject and divergent points of view. The authors' names suggest not only the interest and importance of the essays, but also something of the variety of theme and treatment. The subjects include birds, beasts and fishes; cows, strawberries, trout-fishing, and wild apples; forest trees and wild flowers; and the American landscape from the Atlantic to the Sierras and from Maine to North Carolina.

A serious work by the Wilde Reader in Mental Philosophy in the University of Oxford. It is intended for students of all the social sciences giving the minimum of psychological doctrine that is indispensable in the equipment for work in any of the social sciences. He criticizes freely the views of well-known writers from which he dissents, also pointing out his appreciation with equal candour. He hopes shortly to follow this work with one on the psychology of groups and to deal with collective mental life, the life of the peoples. Of special interest to students of history and ethnology.

Macvane, Edith. The thoroughbred; il. by C: Grunwald. N. Y., George W. Dillingham, [1909.] c. '08. 303 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of the cashier of a New York bank whom the president deliberately plans to make the scapegoat of his own criminal doings. Jim Falliser, the cashier, has it suddenly brought before him one day that working under the president's orders he is so deeply, though innocently, involved in a shortage of half a million that it will be impossible to clear himself. He then attempts suicide, but his wife saves his life, and then works hard to prove his innocence. She is the "thoroughbred" of the story. She sticks to him through everything, believing in his innocence.

Maud, Constance Elisabeth. A daughter of France; with a frontispiece. N. Y., John Lane Co., (The Bodley Head,) 1909. 345 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A delightfully natural little Catholic French girl, granddaughter of a dear old Marquise, marries a Scotch laird and is taken home to his ancestral estates. His mother and two sisters are horrified by her warm, natural lovable foreign ideas, customs and manners. Family prejudice leads to many complications, but the laird and his wife truly love each other and their lives are finally adjusted to great satisfaction. Scense of rare humor brighten the pages.

Misawa, Tadasu. Modern educators and their ideals. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. 6+304 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Excerpts from the works of Camenius, Locke, Rousseau, Basedow and Kant, Pestalozzi, Fichte, Froebel, Herbert, Spencer, Hegel, W. T. Harris and G. Stanley Hall. They are either given in their original form or modified by the author so as to meet the extent and intent of the book, which has been to present the fundamental ideas of these thinkers and epoch makers in a concise and coherent form, and with a sympathetic interpretation. Each selection is followed by a bibliography. Intended mainly for students of pedagogy in colleges or normal schools, teachers and other practical workers in educational fields.

This work covers the entire history of the American Navy from the beginnings to the present time. Mr. Neeser has searched all the extant records, whether manuscript or printed, both in this country and abroad, including the records of the Navy Department, to which he has had access. In compact form he has recorded every ascertainable fact regarding the navy and its activities—the personnel of every expedition and fight, the number of ships, men and guns, the duration and results of engagements, etc. A complete bibliography, comprising several thousand titles, makes the work indispensable to every student of the events in which the navy has played a part. Subject index. Author index. Key to abbreviations for authorities cited.

Peile, Rev. Ja. Hamilton Francis. Ecclesia discens: the church's lesson from the age. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 8+303 p. D. cl., *$1.60 net.

Author is vicar of All Saints, Knightsbridge, and canon of St. Michaels, Coventry. A collection of sermons and essays in which the writer studies "the relation of Christianity to the intellectual and social revolutions, which appear to be moving every day with increasing velocity about us." He shows his readers where truth and life lie in adaptation to environment and where they lie in resistance to environment. This book especially offers hints and helps to that discrimination in the case of the church and Christianity. "Modernism" is specially considered.

Sandeman, G. Uncle Gregory. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 3+284 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Uncle Gregory is a successful banker of immense wealth, philanthropic on a melodramatic scale, a sectarian in whom formal righteousness seems to walk quietly with treachery and dishonesty. He dies and leaves a will enslaving his beneficiaries to carry out preposterous educational and improvement schemes and demanding the writing of a monumental biography of this man of grandiose fame. His admiring niece and her happy human husband almost come to divorce over this great literary work. The story is told in first person by another nephew, who acts as deus ex machina.

Sill, Mrs. Louise Morgan, [Mrs. G. Imbrie Sill.] Sunnyfield; the adventures of Pods and June; il. by Rachael Robinson. N. Y., Harper, 1909. c. 228 p. O. cl., †$1.25.

A girl of twelve and a boy of eleven are the characters in this story for little ones by the author of "Adventures of Miss Kitty Topsy-Toe" and a book of rhymes, "In sun and shade." They give the name of "Sunnyfield" to a large lot back of their town house that their father hires and fences in for them to play in. They give a circus here and also have their Christmas tree there, besides doing many amusing pranks with the aid of the colored butler Walker.

Thomas, Calvin. A history of German literature. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. 9+430 p. D. (Short histories of literatures of the world; ed. by Edmund Gosse.) cl., $1.50 net.

Author is professor of German literature at Columbia University, New York. In this volume he has compassed more than a thousand years of literary history. And although the space is necessarily limited, the work is a real history, dealing with the whole subject of German literature, with due regard to the relative importance of periods, writers and writings. To give a fair idea of all the scope of the work it is only necessary to mention the headings of a few of the twenty chapters: "Religious poetry of the ninth century," "From monasticism to chivalry," "The exotic romances of knight-hood," "The Minnesingers," "The Lutheran revolt," "Between the great wars," "Goethe," "The birth of the new poetic drama," "Lessing and Herder," "The era or romanticism," etc.

A Maine youth—full of ambition and a keen zest for life—begins his career on a rubber plantation in Mexico as manager of a business concern which in reality is a trickster's enterprise, although he does not know it. He meets and loves a beautiful Mexican girl, a revelation after the giggles and smirks to which he has been accustomed. The romance which follows is full of peril and hardships, of love and success.

Young, Laurence Ditto. The climbing doom; il. by Albert M. Sterling. N. Y., George W. Dillingham, [1909.] c. '08. 326 p. pls. D. cl., †$1.50.

An expedition to South America by a group of men in search of rare stones, and incidentally gold, has a remarkable series of adventures. "The pass to the climbing doom," which they travel over, is rich in horrors—skeletons of white men who were killed by "the climbing doom," an immense ant, and other gruesome things. They fall in with a queer race of people living in the mountains, are made prisoners and one of them married to the queen. After living here several years other mystical and unaccountable things happen.

INDEX TO SPRING ANNOUNCEMENTS.

In this department the announcement of books to be published during the Spring season are indexed under author and title, with as much information as publishers were ready to give an advance of publication. Books appeared before February 1 in our "Weekly Record of New Publications" are not included. The omission of titles of prominent publishers is only due to the fact that such publishers failed to respond to request for information.

Where binding is not stated the books are generally understood to be in cloth binding; "bds.," particularly in the department of Juvenile fiction, generally means illuminated or fancy board covers.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 20, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information and guidance in buying books. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of booktrade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

THOUGH the outlook upon the booktrade is still somewhat cloudy, optimism is in the air; indeed, the whole world is being systematically trained to take a cheerful outlook upon all things. The booktrade, however, does not need to laboriously acquire any of the forms of "new thought" when it is assured by official statistics that printing and publishing ranks seventh in volume of product among the three hundred classified industries of the United States recognized by the Census Bureau. It is surpassed only in their order as written by meat, iron and steel, metal manufactures, flour, clothing and lumber. Printing and publishing shows a greater percentage of increase over the census of 1901 than that of any other industry. It must not be forgotten, of course, that an enormous percentage of the bulk of this industry deals with our periodical and newspaper business—the marvel of the world. But book publishing flourishes also, and the spring season in American books promises to be a good one.

When trade had recovered from the artificial panic of the fall of 1907, it was found that the prevailing conditions showed oases of booktrade prosperity in the deserts of financial and commercial markets. Prosperity continued; travellers went out and came back reporting courage, energy and hope among the buyers. Publishers were inspired to do a little more than they had first intended to do, and the output of books almost touched the record figure.

Then came the superstitious pause of wonder what the Presidential election might bring in its wake; but the country showed by overwhelming majority that it was satisfied with its domestic and foreign conditions, the new President entered into office and all the wheels of traffic continue in motion.

With our steadily-increasing population and its quality of education and culture it would seem that the market for books should widen steadily; but Americans are slaves of fashion, and fashion seems to have decreed that the great extravagant, self-indulgent American public, need not be ashamed to beg and borrow books instead of buying its own books and thereby encouraging humanizing influences that should touch mankind at many points. Although this lesson is not yet learned by the majority the trade flourishes, thanks to the discriminating minority, taste improves and publishers provide books of better and better quality.

The public demand fiction; fiction must be furnished, and the public—restless, volatile, morbidly curious—allows authors very often to furnish them with a commodity of which the producer, the middle man and the consumer should be alike ashamed.

Fiction always reflects the life, customs and habits of its day. The times are sybaritic, materialism is in the ascendant, women are leading wholly unnatural lives and accept wholly false views offered them on subjects they cannot judge from the touchstone of experience. Women writers are responsible for many novels that, claiming to offer real pictures, are merely vulgar, and wholly without perspective or artistic balance and well-bred reticence. But this also is improving. The announcements this season show fewer of the peculiar "problem novels."

In other lines this spring will provide reading of enduring interest. The literary centennials of 1909 have already brought many books on Lincoln, Poe, Gladstone, Darwin, Holmes and Tennyson, and there is still quite an aftermath among the announcements. The many works dealing with the triumph of mind over matter, with the great aid religion offers medicine, helping the one profession to realize that the spirit must dwell in a body and the other to realize how the body is constantly influenced by the spirit, have multiplied and are multiplying wonderfully. Biography holds its own in number, though the subjects of the biographies of this spring do not seem as world-famous as those of the past few years. Banks and banking, the negro question, the tariff question, railroads, trusts, the Panama Canal, the great questions of national waste and national responsibility all receive their quota of volumes.

The older writers hold their own, and the classics and standards that have taught the world are to appear in many different series, all models of up-to-date book manufacture.

Ex-president Eliot has recently said that all the lore a man needs to know to have a comprehensive outlook on life and a knowledge of all necessary information rests in books that would find place upon a three-foot wide bookcase. For the sake of the publishers and booksellers we hope the world will still need many books to acquire President Eliot's broad philosophy. But perhaps it would be well to consider less publishing and distributing what already exists more widely, more systematically and more according to proved business methods.

The spring outlook, on the whole, is good, and the year is yet young enough to try many new plans to bring the new and old books temptingly before the retail buyer. The public must be tempted, and the publisher and bookseller must help the author put his work in the most attractive light.

ANOTHER DECISION AS TO THE USE OF THE NAME "WEBSTER."

THE following decision was rendered on March 17 in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the First Circuit in an appeal from the Circuit Court of the U. S. for the District of Massachusetts, by G. & C. Merriam Company, defendant (complainant in Cross-Bill) appellant, versus George W. Ogilvie, complainant (defendant in Cross-Bill) appellee. The decision was written by Judge Putnam, with whom were associated Judges Lowell and Aldrich. Following is the decision in full:

This is the same case in which an opinion was passed down by us, and judgment entered, on January 30, 1908, 159 Fed. Rep. 638. A decree was entered in the Circuit Court pursuant to that judgment, with which the Merriam Company is dissatisfied as not giving it all the relief which the case demands. The objections are two. The first is that the Circuit Court did not insert in the decree what corresponds to what appears in the judgment in Singer Co. v. June Co., 163 U. S. 169, 204, to the effect that the corporation proceeded against was enjoined from using the word "Singer" without clearly and unmistakably specifying, in connection therewith, that its machines were made by it, and were not the product of the complainant. We may also refer to the more specific corresponding provision in the judgment in Hall's Safe Co. v. Hening Safe Co., 146 Fed. Rep. 37, 44, as modified by the Supreme Court in 208 U. S. 554, 560. This precise pointing out was not in terms provided for in the judgment of this court. Therefore, it would not be strange that the Circuit Court omitted it unless its attention was expressly called to it; and the record does not show that this was done. On the case being developed here, we conclude that the decree should be amended by directing that the following words be inserted by Ogilvie, and those who may succeed him, namely: "This dictionary is not published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary, or by their successors"; and that, of course, these words should clearly and unmistakably appear in the title-page of every volume published by the respondent, Ogilvie, or his successors or assigns, of the class to which this litigation relates. It is not for us to go further than this in directing the precise details which may be necessary to make the decree effective in this particular. It is impossible for the Appellate Court to foresee what changes future emergencies may require; therefore, as usual, whatever may be required further, if anything, for that purpose, must be worked out by the Circuit Court.

The other ground of complaint of the Merriam Company is that the decree entered by the Circuit Court makes no provision for an accounting. We must first observe generally that it is doubtful whether any reference for an account of profits or damages would yield a return which would have a reasonable proportion to the cost thereof. The difficulties involved in ascertaining the profits or damages under the circumstances of this case are almost insoluble. Under some circumstances, it has been held that the profits to be accounted for would be the entire profits of publication; but the Supreme Court has never had occasion to consider a rule so harsh as this, and, following the analogy of the practice established in suits for infringement of patents for inventions, we are led to the conclusion that it would never go to that extent. The rule there is, we think, fairly stated by Mr. Walker in the fourth edition of his work on patents at section 719, to the effect that in patent suits the profits recoverable are only such as are due to the infringing parts or features of the thing made and sold, and that the burden rests on the complainant to prove the due proportion allowable therefor. A similar rule seems to have been applied to infringements of patented designs for carpets in Dobson v. Harper Company, 114 U. S. 439, 445, affirmed in Dobson v. Dornan, 118 U. S. 10, and in subsequent cases.

The cases where there has been no division of profits, but the whole profits have been allowed, are proper trademark cases, in which, the defendant having used a trademark proper, the presumption was that the goods would not have been sold without that use. This is what is referred to in Sebastian's Law of Trademarks, 4th ed. (1899), 228, 229, and in Browne on Trademarks, 2d ed. (1885), 519; and the same rule is applied in the ordinary cases of a trademark proper, like Atlantic Milling Co. v. Rowland, 27 Fed. Rep. 24, and Benkert v. Feder, 34 Fed. Rep. 534; also in several cases stated in Hesselstine's Law of Trademarks (1906), 304, 305. The present case, however, does not fully take on that feature. The substantial offense of Ogilvie did not consist in availing himself of a Merriam Company's trademark, because both this court and the Circuit Court have expressly found that there was no trademark. It consisted in dressing up his publications unlawfully. Therefore, there is no concrete thing which belongs to the Merriam Company the value of which can be substantially determined in this connection. In a case relied on by Ogilvie, Williams v. Mitchell, 106 Fed. Rep. 168, 172, decided by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in 1901, the court seemed to proceed on the theory that the complainant was entitled to full damages on account of the use by the respondent of the word "Carrom"; but, in a later case with reference to the same word, the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, in Ludington Co. v. Leonard, 127 Fed. Rep. 155, 157, came to the conclusion that, under the circumstances, to attempt to segregate the profits resulting from the illegitimate use of the word "would require an excursion into the realms of conjecture and speculation without hope of any tangible result." It certainly is the law that, if the equity court perceives that an inquiry as to damages or profits would result only as stated by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, or would yield no compensatory profits or damages proportionate to the cost of the investigation, it will not order an accounting for either. Sebastian's Law of Trademarks, 4th ed. (1899), 229, and the later work, Kerly on Trademarks, 2d ed. (1901), 425. Neither equity nor admiralty will encourage litigation where the result will probably be only nominal. Without undertaking to dispose of the case for these reasons, we are strongly of the impression that a full investigation in reference thereto would require us to refuse the relief now particularly asked for.

There is a more serious difficulty, substantially that which was stated by the learned judge of the Circuit Court, to the effect that, as each party had been found at fault, he was strongly inclined to the opinion that neither was entitled to an accounting. It is true that both parties were not found in fault to the same extent. In the opinion passed down by us on January 30, 1908, it was held that the Circuit Court was correct in enjoining the Merriam Company from claiming the exclusive right to the use of the word "Webster" in connection with dictionaries. This was the extent of the erroneous action on the part of the Merriam Company. No lack of good faith was shown, and the case as against it rested on a misapprehension of its legal rights. On the other hand, we held in substance that Ogilvie had used artifice, with the view of inducing the public to purchase his dictionaries in lieu of those of the Merriam Company. Nevertheless, upon testing the matter practically, this difference in the position of the two parties would not justify us in overruling the Circuit Court with reference to this branch of the case, although under somewhat different circumstances, the mere fact that both parties had been in default might not be decisive. The litigation commenced by a bill filed by Ogilvie on August 9, 1904, which prayed relief against certain notices from the Merriam Company to Ogilvie, and certain circulars which it had issued to publishers, each claiming an exclusive right to the word "Webster." The effect of the circulars was of such a character that, on August 17, 1904, dealers in Baltimore wrote Ogilvie that they were afraid to handle his dictionaries. One was to the effect that the Merriam Company had commenced suit against several parties for publishing or selling dictionaries bearing "Webster" as a part of the title. It also stated that the suits referred to were only presages of others which would be commenced against all who might, without its consent, make or sell dictionaries bearing the name Webster. The record gives another letter from publishers and wholesale dealers in New York to Ogilvie, dated on September 19, 1904, in which, on account of the circulars from the Merriam Company referred to, they not only declined to carry Ogilvie's publications in stock, but even refused to accept his advertisements. But the extent to which the Merriam Company went in this direction is made plain by their amended cross-bill before us, filed on September 20, 1904. That prayed for an injunction against Ogilvie, restraining him, both provisionally and perpetually, from directly or indirectly publishing, offering for sale and selling any dictionary bearing the title "Webster's Dictionary," either alone or in conjunction with any other word or words.

In view of the fact that an accounting in equity comes down to the time of the making of the Master's report, we have not attempted to describe these circulars and notices in strictly chronological order. Some were issued before Ogilvie's bill was filed, and some after. We find a public circular, dated December 1, 1904, addressed to "The Book Trade." This referred to Ogilvie's suit, and alleged that the Merriam Company had filed its answer "denying all his charges and claims," and that it had also filed a cross-bill praying for an injunction against the publication and sale of his "Webster's Imperial Dictionary." The circular proceeded to say that "long and exclusive use has made the word 'Webster' the trade name of dictionaries prepared and published by us or under our supervision and control." It enlarged on this, and closed with a repeated claim to the exclusive use of the word "Webster" in this connection.

The opinion of the learned judge of the Circuit Court which was first appealed against states that there were two issues in the case: first, that of this exclusive right to the word "Webster," and, second, whether or not Ogilvie had sufficiently informed the public that the dictionaries published by him were not the dictionaries published by the Merriam Company. The record, however, shows that the fundamental issue raised by the Merriam Company was its claim to the exclusive right to the use of the word in controversy. The pleadings nowhere indicated the acquiescence, express or implied, of the Merriam Company in the use of it by Ogilvie, either qualified or unqualified. Certain it is that this position of the Merriam Company was persisted in until our decision was passed down on January 30, 1908.

It is apparent from the record that this claim of the Merriam Company to an exclusive right interfered with Ogilvie's trade, and was not lawful, though honestly made. If its claim had been in harmony with the conclusions which this court and the Circuit Court reached, and the notices and circulars had been framed accordingly, non constat Ogilvie would not have yielded, and this litigation been avoided. At any rate, it cannot be questioned that the action of the Merriam Company in the way we have explained, unlawfully threatened Ogilvie's trade and the sale of his dictionaries; so that we have two parties, each of whom in the eyes of the law was a tortfeasor, involved in what was after all a single controversy, having, of course, two branches to it, and each injurious to the opposing party.

The Merriam Company commenced with, and insisted on, the proposition that it was entitled to the exclusive use of the word "Webster"; and it was out of this that the litigation arose. Under the circumstances which we have explained, equity would not be able to do clear justice if it now permitted that corporation to demand an accounting of profits or damages incident to the changed position which the case has taken on.

We do not see our way clear to award costs on this second appeal.

The decree of the Circuit Court is reopened, and the case is remanded to that court, with directions to proceed in accordance with our opinion passed down this seventeenth day of March, 1909; and neither party recovers costs on appeal.

AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

CALL TO THE NINTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

THE following letter addressed to the book-trade explains itself:

The ninth annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association will be held at the Hotel Victoria, Broadway and Twenty-seventh Street, New York City, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 11 and 12.

Prospects of a most interesting and successful meeting were never more promising. The association is in fine condition: its debts are paid and expensive litigation has ceased. This meeting, like the last, will be devoted to the discussion of the problems which arise in the trade, and to ways and means of making the business of bookselling more stable, profitable, and generally satisfactory. The progress made in the last few months has been remarkable. One of the features of this meeting will be a report of the conference held in New York in January between representative publishers and booksellers. There are reasons why this report cannot be printed for general circulation, but a full report of the conference and its results will be made to those who attend the convention. To use an expression which has become a classic: "This alone will be worth the price of admission."

The Programme Committee met in New York, January 12, laid its plans, and has since perfected them.

The great point to be attained is a full attendance, representing every section of the country. This will show our appreciation of the efforts of the officers of the association, to which are due concessions recently made by some of the most prominent publishing houses. We have already had several novels issued at a fixed price, not much in excess of the rate at which we have been selling $1.50 fiction, and now one large and influential house has put every new book of its spring announcements, with the possible exception of juveniles, on a net basis, with a discount which permits a fair profit, and encourages liberal buying. We need to get together and express our appreciation of these signs of progress, and insure their continuance and general adoption.

The annual banquet of the association will again be in charge of Charles A. Burkhardt and able assistants, and will be a notable event.

Most of the members who were present last year may be relied upon to attend this important meeting of the association; no member can afford to be absent or unrepresented.

Very truly yours,

ALBERT B. FIFIELD, Secretary.

27 EAST 22D ST., NEW YORK, March 13, 1909.

PLANS OF THE BANQUET COMMITTEE.

The Banquet Committee of the American Booksellers' Association met at the office of the association, 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York, on Monday, March 15, 1909, at 2:30 P. M. In the absence of A. B. Fifield, secretary of the association, the meeting was called to order by Charles A. Burkhardt, who was nominated Chairman of the Banquet Committee and unanimously elected. The other offices were filled by George Blatchford, secretary; Charles Bowman, treasurer. Mr. Burkhardt appointed the following sub-committees:

Committee on Arrangements—A. B. Fifield, of The Edward P. Judd Co.; Charles E. Butler, of Brentano's, and Arthur P. Jackson, of Hawkes-Jackson Co.

Committee on Printing—Samuel Graydon, of Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Co.; Walter L. Butler, of E. S. R. Butler & Son, and Theo. E. Schulte.

Committee on Tickets—Charles L. Bowman, Henry Malkan and A. Wessels, of A. Wessels Co.

Committee on Souvenirs—E. Byrne Hackett, of The Baker & Taylor Co.; R. E. Sherwood, and W. E. Smith, of L. F. Waterman Co.

Publicity Committee—A. Growoll, of The Publishers' Weekly; W. R. Andrews, of The American Stationer; Henry J. Berger, of The National Stationer; E. O. Chapman, of Bookseller, Newsdealer and Stationer; C. C. Walden, of Walden's Stationer, and Andrew Geyer, of Geyer's Stationer.

Reception Committee—Charles L. Bowman, Simon Brentano, of Brentano's; Walter L. Ettler, of E. S. R. Butler & Son; W. P. Christopher, of The Technical Supply Co.; John Hovendon, F. P. Seymour, of L. E. Waterman Co.; Harry F. Davis, of R. S. Davis & Co.; F. D. Lacy, of G. P. Putnam's Sons; Henry C. Bainbridge, of Chas. T. Bainbridge's Sons; Theodore L. C. Gerry, of Gerry & Murray, and William J. Kelly, of McLoughlin Brothers.

Committee on Seating—E. Byrne Hackett, of The Baker & Taylor Co.; W. G. Preston, of Dodd, Mead & Co., and Charles E. Butler, of Brentano's.

It was decided to hold the banquet at the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 12, at 6.30 P. M., the price of tickets to be $3.50.

14TH ANNUAL MEETING OF BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE fourteenth annual meeting of The Booksellers' League was held at the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City, on the evening of March 17. In honor of the day the entertainment committee, so far as possible, adopted green in all the decorations, the menu, the invitation card, etc. The invitation card brought the following telegram from Portland, Oregon:

"Color of card makes me homesick; but where are your Irish speakers? Invite Dr. Coyle."
DESMOND FITZGERALD.

Unfortunately Dr. Coyle could not attend, but in his place the Grafton Press sent to each one present a copy of the Grafton Magazine, containing Dr. Coyle's stirring address on Commander Barry, the "Father of the American Navy," delivered to the League at its November dinner last year. Green was the prevailing color in the dishes served, which began with a cream of spinach soup, followed by a green fish with a green sauce, a mint roman punch, ham with a large helping of spinach and bisque ice cream.

After the last of the green food had been served by the green help and the coffee passed around, the president, Mr. Bowman, called for the report of the Board of Managers, which was read by A. G. Seiler, the secretary, as follows:

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS.

To the Members of the Booksellers' League.

Your Board of Managers, on the occasion of the fourteenth annual meeting, take pleasure in presenting for your consideration the following report:

During the past year, 1908-1909, the Board of Managers of The Booksellers' League has held six business meetings to consider matters concerning the welfare of the League. The records show 230 members in good standing, and the financial condition is also satisfactory, as will be seen by the following:

REPORT OF THE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Charles E. Bonnell, who for so many years has devoted much of his time to the administration of the Employment Bureau, reports that he has had during the past year sixty-one applications for positions and twelve inquiries for help. The applications for positions came from seventeen boys, twelve packers, three bookkeepers, ten clerks, ten salesmen, one travelling salesman, three editors, two stenographers, and three from general helpers. A comparison with the figures of former years shows that during 1908-1909 there have been twice as many more applicants for work and only about half as many vacancies as for some time past. The work of this Bureau should be brought to the attention of all employers everywhere, as oftentimes those who are looking for work have no objection to leaving New York City.

WORK OF THE LEAGUE.

The League during the year that has just drawn to a close has provided six dinners and entertainments for its members. The average attendance is steadily growing larger, in some cases doubling up on the attendance of former years, which would indicate that the efforts of the Board in this direction are appreciated. A review of each of these dinners and entertainments would be interesting, but would make a long story. However, some special features of at least a few of our dinners should be mentioned in this report.

On May 20, 1908, we once more joined with the American Booksellers' Association in their annual banquet, which is looked upon as the most popular gathering of booksellers in this country. On that occasion we were honored by the presence of Mark Twain, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Burges Johnson, editor of Judge, and Will Irwin. The evening had surprises in store for two members of the League—for Charles A. Burkhardt, to whom was presented a silver coffee service on a silver tray as a recognition of his services as chairman of the entertainment committee of the American Booksellers' Association; also, for A. Growoll, who was presented by the booksellers of the United States with a gold watch and a memorial volume to mark the half century of his connection with the American booktrade.

On January 20 of this year we gave our fourteenth annual dinner and Ladies' Night, which took the form of a Knickerbocker Evening, the subject of each speaker being Old New York. Lieutenant Stephen Jenkins spoke on "Old New York;" Charles Battell Loomis told the League "What is a New Yorker," and Allen S. Loomis gave a talk on "The Indians of New York," which was illustrated by half a dozen Indian men, women and children in their tribal dress, who gave some of their native songs and dances and illustrated others of their customs. Dr. Isaac Taylor Headland, of the Pekin University, closed the exercises of the evening with an intensely interesting talk on the conditions at the Chinese court during the past two years.

On the evening of February 17 the League commemorated the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The dining room was fittingly decorated with "Old Glory" and with portraits of Lincoln, prominent among which was a large plaster cast of a head of Lincoln, made by one of the speakers of the evening—Gutzon-Borglum—which stood at the lower end of the centre table. The principal speaker of the evening was Harry W. Knight, who gave an intimate and realistic address on "A Boy's Recollection of Abraham Lincoln." After the applause had subsided all arose and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Gutzon-Borglum, the sculptor, then spoke on "Portraits of Lincoln," expressing the opinion that Lincoln had been grossly misrepresented in portraiture. Mr. Bowman read an original poem by Lincoln, entitled "Memory," and then the Rev. Dr. S. H. Bishop addressed the League. When Dr. Bishop had finished, all arose and sang "America." Each guest was presented with a Lincoln Medal, taken from the "Lincoln Tribute Book," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons; a copy of "The Wisdom of Abraham Lincoln," presented by the A. Wessels Co.; Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," with portrait, printed on Japan paper, presented by G. P. Putnam's Sons, and a leaflet containing Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby, in facsimile, and his Gettysburg speech, presented by R. E. Sherwood.

The names of other guests who have entertained us at different dinners are Raymond L. Ditmars, Captain Jack Bonavita, the Rev. Dr. L. T. Chamberlain, Hudson Maxim, F. C. Brown, Frederick Palmer, Dr. John G. Coyle and Ernest Thompson Seton.

Great praise is due to our entertainment committee which, under the chairmanship of Mr. Lacy, has so efficiently provided for our entertainment. It is no easy task. We remind you, gentlemen, of your duty to help us carry on even more effectively the objects of our League. If you have any suggestions to offer that might interest us all, do not hesitate to state them either at the dinners or to any members of the Board.

Respectfully offered,

A. G. SEILER, Secretary.

The report was adopted with generous applause.

The election of president resulted in the unanimous choice of J. B. Pratt, of A. S. Barnes & Co., who has served the League long and effectively in various committees and as vice-president.

While the tellers canvassed the League for the election of members of the Board of Managers, Richard E. Sherwood gave most interesting reminiscences of his experiences as a "trouper" chiefly with Forepaugh's circus and as an actor.

On the conclusion of Mr. Sherwood's very pleasant talk the tellers announced the choice of the following as Trustees of the League for 1909: C. L. Bowman, John A. Holden, E. B. Hackett, J. Macdonald and Edwin W. Hall.

Mr. Bowman, in surrendering the chair to the incoming president, addressed the League as follows:

In vacating the chair of the President of the Booksellers' League, I wish to express to all my fellow-members the pleasure it has given me during the past year to attempt to fill creditably the position to which you did me the honor of election. It is an honor that I shall always appreciate, especially as our Treasurer informs me that it has been the most successful year in the history of the League—not successful because we have a larger balance in the treasury than ever before, but successful because the average attendance at our League dinners has been much larger than ever before, and successful because we have fully enjoyed all of these various dinners. Much of this has been due to the able and zealous Entertainment Committee, headed by Mr. Frederick D. Lacy, to the indefatigable efforts of our treasurer, and to those who have worked faithfully and arduously to make the Booksellers' League what it is—the most popular and democratic association of booksellers in the United States. I say democratic because when we come here we have only one thought in our mind, and that is to enjoy ourselves and forget our worries and cares. If any of you come here and do not have a good time, I am afraid it is your own fault. I can remember that in the early days of the League some of us had a pretty lonesome time. I can remember when even my speaking acquaintance with members of the League numbered less than half a dozen, but there are no proud members at the present time and the old-time diffidence has worn off. Our Reception and Entertainment Committee want you all to know each other, and to exemplify the spirit of good-fellowship which was the real cornerstone of the foundation of the Booksellers' League. The future of the League never looked brighter than it does to-day, and I hope we may all live long to enjoy the pleasure that has been insured for us by the forethought and unremitting ardor and zeal of the members of our own organization.

Mr. Pratt thanked the League for the honor conferred upon him, and assured its members that so far as lay in his powers he would endeavor to justify the faith reposed in him.

AN ENGLISH BOOKSELLER'S SALES FOUR HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

In the library of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, according to the London Bookseller, "there is preserved the ledger or day book of an Oxford bookseller—one John Dorne—which records the books he sold during the year 1520. They number 2383; most of them were Latin, some were English, one or two Greek. The English books were mainly almanacs, ballads, Christmas carols, lives of the saints, mediæval romances, with three copies of a book on cookery, three of one on carving, one on table etiquette, one on husbandry, three on the care of horses, and an English translation of Virgil. The Latin books include breviaries, missals, many grammars and a few lexicons. Twenty volumes of Duns Scotus, four each of Thomas Aquinas and Augustine, thirty-seven copies of works of Cicero, the same number of Terence, thirty of Aristotle, twenty-nine of Vergil, twenty-three of Ovid, fourteen of Lucan, twelve of Aristophanes, (one in Greek,) nine of Lucian, eight of Horace, six of Sallust, eight of Pliny, three of Aulus Gellius, one of Tacitus, and one of Persius. But the author whose book had the greatest sale was Erasmus, more than 250 copies of his works were sold; the 'Colloquia,' 'De Constructione,' 'Copia,' 'Enchiridion Militis Christiani,' and 'Adagia' being most popular. The large sale is the more noticeable as at that time one book served many students. John Dorne records that one famous scholar took away a book and failed to pay for it."

GERMS IN OLD BOOKS.

THE bookseller, according to a representative of the Philadelphia Bulletin, displayed a kind of muzzle—a contrivance of silk and wire to fit over the mouth and nostrils.

"Reading mask," he said. "Latest thing from Paris. It is worn at the Bibliothèque Nationale by the students of old books and manuscripts to prevent the inhalation of disease germs.

"Those aged volumes are nests of germs. In the great French library masked readers are as common as masked motorists in the boulevards."

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE QUESTION OF DISCOUNTS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I have read with much interest the array of most interesting matter contained in your issues of March 6 and 13. I venture to send one more communication which may be properly supplemental to the communication in yours of March 6, signed "Bookseller," and entitled "Protection Wanted on Pick-Up and Mail Orders."

This is something written last January to a publisher who was making a vigorous attempt to get his establishment into line with the new conditions which seem to be coming to the booktrade at the present time.

"Your suggestion in regard to discounts is in the right direction, but speaking from the standpoint of the small or average dealer, rather than my own, why not make the minimum discount large enough for him to live on, and the maximum discount small enough to avoid any temptation of cutting by the dealers who receive a favored rate? Say one-third as minimum and one-third and five maximum. Under the lower rate you propose a small individual dealer could hardly eke out a living, his cost of doing business being more proportionately and averaging 28 per cent. while another dealer who received so large a concession as 10 per cent. should make money, and perhaps do business at a lower percentage, probably 25 per cent. or possibly 23 per cent.

"Take, for instance, a city of moderate size nearby, where there is a creditable bookstore, but the demand would not warrant purchase of more than three or four copies of ordinary titles. Near him is a department store, perhaps, buying through a syndicate of seventeen or twenty stores, among whom a quantity of books is divided at 10 per cent. less. The actual quantity marketed by each is the same, but the one has an advantage which must eventually drive the other out of business.

"It is to the publisher's advantage to have his whole line represented, not now and then his popular seller on which he must pay a large copyright, but his whole line. Dealers should be encouraged to buy as many titles as possible. Under the present scheme, the publisher, by urging the dealer to put his whole effort on one book to secure an extra rate, practically forces to the background his less popular but perhaps more meritorious books. He should place, therefore, his whole line on an equality, as is done in the case of a series. If a price concession is to be made it should be on a line as a whole, not on any individual book, and then the advantage should be given because it represents an investment, and should be measured by practically the current rate of interest. The jobber should be a publisher's agent, whose sole right for being in business is for the convenience of the trade, not to compete with him for library and other business, based on his buying books at a lower rate."

Since writing the above, I have had a case which is illustrative of the necessity of something being done on the lines as suggested in this letter. I recently had three books offered me by a leading publishing house, which, if I bought in lots of 100, I could obtain a discount of one-third on. I mentioned the fact that a certain department store was breaking the price on these books, and that at a discount of one-third there would be no margin of profit. I was then informed that the department store bought in lots of 250, and received the extra 10 per cent discount, to which I objected in my communication.

I, therefore, declined giving an order or to carry this line of books in stock in future. It all harks back to what you have said so often in your editorials, that the giving of an extra discount merely permits the under-seller to throw away his possible profit, and incidentally rob all the other dealers of their profit. No one is benefited but the publisher, and that he is benefited is not entirely certain, because it cannot be beneficial to any producer not to have the distributor making money. The necessity of the adoption of the sale of books under contract as to maintenance of price seems to be self-evident.

Yours truly,

W. B. CLARKE.

PUBLISHERS IN COMPETITION WITH RETAILERS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Allow us to add our protest against "the efforts of nearly all publishers to secure direct retail orders." A frank discussion of this topic in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY might be of service.

Yours truly,

PRESTON & ROUNDS CO.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 17, 1909.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES C. BAUGHMAN, vice-president of the Baughman Stationery Company, Richmond, Va., died on March 3, sixty-seven years of age. Mr. Baughman was a member of the Otey Battery during the war between the States, and had just completed his part of reminiscences of that command.

ALEXANDER CALDWELL, the father of Herbert Caldwell, of the H. M. Caldwell Company, Clarence A. Caldwell, representative of Dana Estes & Co., and of Arthur Caldwell, with the Lamb Publishing Company, died March 14, at his home in Newmarket, Ontario, in his seventy-eighth year. Mr. Caldwell had been an invalid for many years.

JOHN CONRAD RICHARD, known to many in the book and stationery trade through his long connection with them, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., on March 15. Mr. Richard was born in Nuremberg about seventy-five years ago. After coming to this country he became a general salesman for the Eagle Pencil Company, and afterward was in business for himself at 48 John Street. He then became a partner in the firm of Ihlfelder, Richard & Company, and left there in 1872 to go with the American News Company, succeeding E. Lyon. He held the position with the American News Company of manager of the stationery department and European buyer. He crossed the ocean in the interests of the firm more than forty times. While he was in charge of the stationery department it grew from small beginnings to the important place which it now occupies in the business carried on by the American News Company. Mr. Richard retired from active connection with the company in June, 1907.

PHILIP HAKE, founder of the Philip Hake Manufacturing Company of New York City, was found dead in a bathtub at his home in Hoboken, N. J., on March 6. Mr. Hake had been for many years prominently associated with the stationery trade, as a manufacturer of fancy stationery, papeteries, tally and score cards, novelties, etc. He started in business in a small way on Franklin Street, New York City, in 1870, after having come to this country from Germany. From there he moved to larger quarters at 155 William Street, where he remained for a number of years. The increase in his business necessitated still larger quarters, and he then moved into his own factory building at 132 Essex Street, where he has since remained. Associated with Mr. Hake from the beginning was George A. Raisbeck, afterwards president of the company, who with his wife on July 27, 1908, lost his life in Lake Sylvia, Minn. It is thought that brooding over the manner of the death of his old associate and friend led to the supposed suicide of Mr. Hake.

AUGUST TOEDTEBERG, a well-known collector of prints, inlayer and extra-illustrator, died on March 15, at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y.. Born in Hamelin, the town of the "Pied Piper," on April 24, 1825, Mr. Toedteberg came to New York in 1844 and studied law. His love for old books and pictures led him to invest much time and some capital in their collection, and he finally took apart a history of Byron and carefully and artistically added pictures and letters of the poet and many of his friends, rebinding the volume into several. When wealthy collectors whom the young student met in his quest in the old book stores saw this they immediately asked for similar work, and Mr. Toedteberg, within a few months, discarded the law for the making of such collections. When Mr. Toedteberg's collection was sold at auction a few years ago more than one hundred thousand autograph letters, autographed pictures, old prints and priceless relics of the kind were sought by collectors who came from Europe to bid against American enthusiasts. The auction realized a large sum. Thousands of similar curiosities of literature and history which Mr. Toedteberg owned were not then offered for sale.

RT. HON. HUGH OAKLEY ARNOLD-FORSTER, secretary of war of Great Britain and well known as an author, died in London March 12. Arnold-Forster was born in 1855, the son of William Delafield Arnold, director of public instruction in the Punjab. He was adopted as a son by the famous W. E. Forster, ("Buck-Shot,") who was his uncle by marriage, and whose name he adopted in addition to his own. From Rugby he went to Oxford, where he obtained first class honors in the final schools in modern history. He was called to the bar in 1879, and soon attracted attention by his books and his contributions to the press on matters of public importance, and especially on questions connected with the national defences. He sat in the House of Commons from 1892 until 1906, and soon assumed a prominent position as a debater. From 1900 to 1903 he was Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty. Neither his Parliamentary nor his official duties were allowed to interfere with his literary labors. One of his best-known books is "In a Conning Tower," which gives a vivid account of man-of-war life. Other publications of his were "How to Solve the Irish Land Question," "The Citizen Reader," "The Laws of Every Day Life," "This World of Ours," "Our Home Army," "A History of England," "Army Letters," "The Coming of the Kilogram," "Our Great City," "The Army in 1906," and "English Socialism of To-day." All of his publications were of a more or less educational character, and he was noted for his mastery of detail.

ELINOR MACARTNEY LANE, one of the best-known and most deservedly popular of modern novelists, died at Lynchburg, Virginia, on the evening of March 15. Her delicate health had led her husband, Dr. Frank Ransom Lane, to take her abroad in the autumn. They had recently returned and were on their way to Asheville, N. C., in quest of recuperation, when an access of her malady made it necessary to stop at Lynchburg, where after some two weeks her illness proved fatal. Mrs. Lane was born in Maryland about forty-five years ago, a descendant of an old Irish family. Later her home was in Washington, where she was educated at the High School and Normal School. Like Lewis Carroll, she gained distinction as a specialist in mathematics, a gift joined to richness of imagination which found expression from childhood in tales and verse. In June, 1891, she married Dr. Francis Ransom Lane, a distinguished educator, who was superintendent of schools in Washington and afterwards head of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and of the Tome Institute in Maryland. It was not until 1901 that Mrs. Lane published her first novel, "Mills of God." Much attention was attracted by the power and the literary quality of this novel, which, as the author once said, was intended to show "the influence of heredity and the fact that we are punished by our sins rather than for them." In 1904 she published "Nancy Stair," a romance with a historical background, which gained universal favor through its vividness of characterization and charm of sentiment and expression. The belief that Nancy Stair was a real person brought constant inquiries to the author. With the exception of two or three short stories, Mrs. Lane had been absorbed since "Nancy Stair" in the novel which she regarded as her most important work, "Katrine." She had finished the manuscript last summer, and read the proofs in Paris, and on her return journey to this country she was able to see early copies of "Katrine," which is just coming from the press of Harper & Brothers. The greater part of Mrs. Lane's life was passed in Washington, with summers in Gloucester, where she was a friend of many artists who painted there, and with frequent journeys abroad and visits to Asheville and to New York. The charm, tenderness and wit which have impressed themselves upon the readers of her books were characteristic of a personality which had surrounded her with a rare circle of close friends. As a writer of romantic fiction her place in American letters has been compared to that of Stevenson in modern English literature.

PERSONAL NOTES.

M. and MME. EMILE TERQUEM announce the marriage of their daughter, Mlle. Madeleine, to Robert Lévy on March 16. The many members of the trade who have enjoyed the generous hospitality of M. Terquem and his family in their charming home in Paris will join us in hearty congratulations to the bride and groom.

C. O. LILLIE, who has been connected with the house of Dodd, Mead & Company a good many years, will, on the 1st of April, take up a position in the retail department of E. P. Dutton & Company. Mr. Lillie's accurate knowledge of all publishers' lists and the large experience he has had in both selling and shipping of books makes him a valuable salesman in retail book business.

CHARLES WELSH, the well-known authority on the history of children's literature, and expert on the subject of reading for the young of all ages, after fifteen years of residence in Boston, is about to take up an important editorial position with The International Correspondence School at Scranton, Pa., where he will have charge of a new department which he is to create and develop under the auspices of that organization. During Mr. Welsh's residence in New England he has continued the work he began in England as long ago as in the year 1877, editing The Home and School Classics, published by D. C. Heath & Co., originating and compiling The Young Folk's Library, in twenty volumes, to which Thomas Bailey Aldrich lent his name as editor and assisting in the making of Collier's Library for Young People, in twenty volumes. He was also managing editor and compiler of Self Culture for Young People, in ten volumes, published by The F. P. Kaiser Co., of St. Louis; the edited "Famous Battles of the Nineteenth Century," published by The A. Wessels Co., and an edition of "Lord Chesterfield's Letters to His Son," published by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co. He made "Irish Literature," in ten volumes, for which Justin McCarthy stood sponsor, and made one of the best and most complete anthologies of Irish poetry, entitled "A Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics." These, however, represent but a tithe of his literary activity while in New England, and the same energy which he has displayed in the making of these and other books will no doubt be concentrated upon his new work, which he hopes will prove to be the crowning effort of his career.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have been obliged to postpone Arthur Stringer's new novel, "The Gunrunner," until March 27.

HODDER & STOUGHTON, the well-known publishers of St. Paul's House, London, are now represented in America by George H. Doran Company, at 35 West Thirty-second Street, New York City, and Toronto, Canada.

BENZIGER BROTHERS will supply Sir F. Burdand's "The Catholic Who's Who and Year Book, 1909," which, as a book of mere information, a mere book of reference, has already made itself indispensable, though to many of its users it has also a value as a book of entertaining readings.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish this month the eleven centennial addresses delivered in honor of Charles Darwin before the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Baltimore on the 1st of January, this year. The volume will be entitled "Fifty Years of Darwinism."

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish in April a new book by Rev Charles Wagner, author of "The Simple Life." This is the first volume issued by Mr. Wagner since he left his Alsatian home to establish in Paris an institution for religious culture which he has named "The Home of the Soul"—the title given also to his forthcoming book, which will contain fourteen chapters besides a general introduction.

WARD & DRUMMOND, 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York City, have brought out a leaflet containing the Ten Commandments, Christ's Summary of the Commandments, the Beatitudes, the Lord's Prayer and the Twenty-third Psalm, the text being taken from the American standard edition of the Revised Bible published by Thomas Nelson & Sons. The leaflet is neatly printed in two colors, and retails at $1.50 the hundred.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY has just ready John Charles Spoth's "A Knight in Homespun," a story of a man who gives his name to a woman in order to protect her from scandal when the man to whom she is betrothed dies suddenly. They announce a revolutionary novel, "Alice Brenton," by Marie Josephine Gale, and as the scene is Newport and many of the personages are historical it should please Rhode Islanders.

THE trade is warned against the Karlton Publishing Co. of Chicago and its representative, Karlton P. Day of New York City. This concern buys books through its agent, who requests the victim not to ship the books until his firm send a check for the amount of the purchase. Frequently the victim sends the goods immediately upon receipt of a check to discover at his leisure and to his sorrow that the check is no good and that the goods are no longer get-at-able.

CASSELL & COMPANY will bring out this month a novel dealing with the work of the clergymen among the Cornish miners, entitled "Hoodman Grey, Christian," by David Raeburn, which brings out the contrast between the teachings of Christianity and the old Cornish legends; "Ships of Desire," by a new author, Kate Horn, the principal characters of which are the officers of an English regiment stationed at Malta; also an English love story by Katherine Tynan, entitled "Mary Gray."

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY, (Reilly & Britton Co., Agts.,) are to be congratulated upon a new book by Harold Bell Wright, author of "That Printer of Udell's" and "The Shepherd of the Hills." The new book has not yet been christened, but it is decided to make the first printing 100,000 copies, and under any title is it bound to come into its own. The story is said to be as totally different from both the popular successes the author has achieved as these two are totally different from each other.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have just ready "The Cords of Vanity," by James Branch Cabell, a book told in the first story by a hero who begins as a boy taking everything very seriously, who develops into an author; "Much Ado About Peter," a story told from the servant quarters by Jean Webster, author of "When Patty Went to College"; "Irresolute Catherine," by Violet Jacob, author of "Aythan Waring," who here tells a story of the shepherds of Wales; and two new volumes in their beautiful edition of Kipling, "The Five Nations" and "Under the Deodars."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will bring out in April a book by Professor William James, entitled "A Pluralistic Universe." It contains the lectures delivered under the title of "The Present Situation in Philosophy," on the Hibbert Foundation at Oxford, 1908. In these lectures Professor James vigorously criticises the school of transcendental idealism which began at Oxford under the influence of T. H. Green forty years ago, and continues his well-known attempt to save empiricism and pluralism from the reproach under which they lie, according to him, of being philosophies of irreligion.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD COMPANY will publish shortly "A Pair of Madcaps," a collection of eight stories by John Townsend Trowbridge. The "Madcaps," brother and sister, behave in the fashion of the young folk in "Coupon Bonds" and "Neighbor Jackwood," and their performances are illustrated by Frank T. Merrill. Three of the added stories are serious, two are true, and the well-known monologue, "Aunt Melissy on Boys," is printed with them. They announce another new story for young people, entitled "Mother Tucker's Seven." The "seven" are four girls and three boys, some serious and some mischievous, and Mother Tucker sympathizes with both.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have brought out this week "The Government of European Cities," by Professor William Bennett Munro, of Harvard, and "The Laws of Friendship," by Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College. They will publish next week another volume in the series of Stories from American History—"The Story of the Great Lakes," by Professor Edward Channing and Miss Marion F. Lansing; the fourth volume of Bailey's "Cyclopedia of Agriculture," "Modern Thought and the Crisis in Belief," by Professor Robert M. Wenley; "Walt Whitman," by Professor George Rice Carpenter, in the English Men of Letters Series; and Professor Allan Marquand's "Greek Architecture."

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish shortly a new novel by Elinor Macartney Lane, entitled "Katrine." It is nearly five years since "Nancy Stair" appeared, and "Katrine" is the first novel which the author has published since. As in the case of "Nancy Stair" and "Mills of God" the heroine is the central figure of Mrs. Lane's new romance, which is described by those who have read it as a book riper and of greater power than its predecessors. They have taken over the publishers' rights to all books by Hamlin Garland. Titles thus added to the list of Mr. Garland's books already published by this house are comprised by the following: "Main-Travelled Roads," "Prairie Folk," "Rose of Dutcher's Coolly," "Boy Life on the Prairie," "The Trail of the Gold Seekers," "A Little Norsk," "A Spoil of Office," "Jason Edwards," "A Wayside Courtship," "The Eagle's Heart."

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY have invested much ingenuity of invention and execution and a generous investment of capital in their muslin books, which are having phenomenal success. Nine series of these "Saalfeld Muslin Books" are now ready, printed on soft linen in exceedingly bright colors. They may be folded, bent and rolled and yet not broken or torn, and are a blessing in the nursery. The babies may learn about animals, birds, butterflies and flowers, and enjoy the thrilling adventures of Little Red Riding Hood, Old Mother Hubbard, and Peter Rabbit and get acquainted with Babies of All Nations, and then fall asleep all over the gay covered books and find them as good as new after many weeks. There are also many muslin novelties: Cornucopias, "Goldenlocks," a doll standing 17 inches high when made; doll houses, fire stations and barns, stand-up books, and many other devices to feed the child's imagination and occupy his hands.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just brought out a novel, entitled "Loaded Dice," by Ellery H. Clark, whose name is new to the title-page of popular fiction, though well-known and long established in athletic annals. It was while an undergraduate at Harvard that he first came into prominence as an athlete. In 1896 he competed in the revival of the Olympic games at Athens and there won the running high jump and the running broad jump. In 1897 and again in 1903 Mr. Clark won the all-around amateur championship of America. Mr. Clark is now a practicing lawyer in Boston, and, while "Loaded Dice" is his first novel, he is an author of standing, having written three books on the law of accidents. He was recently a member of the Boston Board of Aldermen and of the Boston School Committee. "Loaded Dice" reflects Mr. Clark's experience in both the field of athletics and the field of politics, containing many scenes of outdoor excitement and narrating the events of a sensational campaign.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. announce that Dr. William Bradley Otis's "American Verse, 1625-1807," which was delayed beyond expectations in the manufacture, is now ready for publication. It is the first work to treat early American verse in philosophical and interpretive manner. They will publish at once a new book by H. Addington Bruce, entitled "The Romance of American Expansion," a biographical history of the territorial growth of the United States. Mr. Bruce takes eight famous historical personages—Daniel Boone, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Sam Houston, Thomas H. Benton, John C. Fremont, William H. Seward and William McKinley—and, interweaving their personal achievements with a more general account of the great events in which they participated, gives the story of expansion in a form that makes it of the liveliest interest to the general reader and of great helpfulness to the student. The book is based upon exhaustive research, contains much valuable information not elsewhere brought together, and is rounded out by a critical bibliography covering the most useful literature relating to each successive forward step.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will bring out on March 27 "Through Welsh Doorways," by Miss Jeannette Marks, which promises to do for the byways of Wales what "A Window in Thrums" did for Scotland; also, "On the Road to Arden," by Miss Margaret Morse, a charming romance of springtime and the countryside. They announce a new book by Professor Hugo Münsterberg, of Harvard University, whose "The Eternal Values," first brought out last year in Germany, was welcomed as one of the greatest philosophical efforts of modern times. Critics in both Germany and America called it the closest system of idealism that the last half century has produced. The success of the German book now leads the author to publish the work in English, not as a mere translation, but with certain side issues omitted, and many new parts added which link it more closely with practical life. It is, in fact, a book which ought to appeal to every serious reader who seeks a deeper meaning for his life. It is to be published coincident with the change of president at Harvard University and marks the beginning of the new epoch with a distinct advancement in the science of thought.

REILLY & BRITTON's spring announcements include "Pippins and Peaches," by Mme. Qui Vive, illustrated by Penrhyn Stanlaws, a delightful little volume, beautifully made in every way, the "flip" philosophy of the text being filled with many laughs; "The Menu Book—What to Eat To-day," a companion volume to "Recipes—My Friends' and My Own" and "Forget-Me-Nots"—which offers suggestions to puzzled housewives as to what to serve for breakfasts, dinners, luncheons, teas, on special occasions, etc., designed and illustrated by Clara Powers Wilson; "The Road to Oz," the only new Baum book for 1909, which will be unique in many ways in point of manufacture, with 100 humorous illustrations by John R. Neill and special pictorial chapter headings; "Little Johnny and the Taffy Possums," the latest toy-book fad, with funny pictures by J. R. Bray, published by arrangement with Judge; "A Woman for Mayor," by Helen M. Winslow, former editor of The Club Woman and author of "Literary Boston of To-day," "The President of Quex," "Concerning Polly," etc., a novel in which a "modern" young woman, after scoring a victory in politics, succumbs to Cupid in the end; also, "The House a Jap Built," a clever and neatly printed children's novelty book, illustrated in many colors by a native Japanese artist.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week "The Making of Carlyle," by R. S. Craig. Since the publication of Froude's "life" of Carlyle much bitter controversy has arisen around the personality both of Carlyle and his wife. The present book is the outcome of a life spent in close sympathy with and deep study of Carlyle and his teaching, and of a sustained and determined attempt to arrive at a fuller understanding of the influences which surrounded him. The period treated of is that of the formative years—the years when his character was in the making. The author endeavors to recall the actual facts, feeling and atmosphere of the Scottish rural life into which Carlyle was born, of the educative influences that gathered round that life, and of the university to which he passed. The author strives to get behind Carlyle's old-age scoffing manner, and to fill up the gap in Froude where the biographer is least in touch and sympathy with his subject. So, too, with the Annan school-mastering days, the marvellous Kirkcaldy period of "Blumino" and the "Decline and Fall," with the great period at Hoddam when Carlyle grasped firmly his new creed and first dreamed dreams; with the Craigen-Puttock period and the birth of "Sartor Resartus"—all these are retold with fuller sympathy and understanding, and the effect should be to restore Carlyle to the affections of his countrymen.

H. M. CALDWELL Co. announce for immediate publication the first volumes in The New Philosophy of Life Series, a series of essays by Rev. J. Herman Randall, of Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York City, on the "New Thought Movement." Mr. Randall's sermons on the subject delivered in New York this past winter were phenomenally successful and brought him a national reputation as an advanced thinker. There are many different forms of expression in this "New Thought Movement": Christian Science, Emmanuel Movement, Mental Healing, etc., each embodying certain truths and each open to criticism. The author believes the time has come when flippant ridicule, mere criticism, and wholesale condemnation should give place to intelligent insight and wise discrimination, and in this series an attempt will be made to show the true scientific and religious principles underlying all these kindred phases of thought, to bring science and religion into closer harmony and to throw new light on their truth as applied to human life in the whole range of its experience. The first volume of the series will be issued in April under the title "The Real God," comprising two essays, "The Universal Mind" and "The Divinity of Man," to be followed by "The Subconscious Mind," "The Power of Suggestion," "Mental and Physical Man," "Paths to Attainment," "The Supreme Victory," and "The Rebirth of Religion." The H. M. Caldwell Co. met with such flattering success last year with their line of gift books for Commencement purposes that they have made a new edition of their "My Graduation" and "My High School Days," and have issued an entirely new memory book for the graduate, entitled "School Day Memories." They have also prepared many new gift books in appropriate bindings. Their catalogue, entitled "Books for Commencement," is one of the handsomest ever issued. It will be sent upon request.

CHAS. SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly a book by F. G. Aflalo, giving a bright and lively account of fishing and other days in California and Canada, under the title of "Sunset Playgrounds." The author's recent visit to the famous and beautiful Catalina Island—the Mecca of sea-anglers—is described, and there are lively accounts of glorious sport with the great Pacific game-fishes, and the trout of American and Canadian lakes and streams, while the book also provides bright and amusing criticisms of American and Canadian life and ways. They will bring out in April Professor Rudolph Eucken's work on "The Problem of Human Life as Viewed by the Great Thinkers from Plato to Our Own Day." This, the most famous and widely read of the works of the famous Jena professor and winner of the Nobel Prize of literature in 1908, is described as "an altogether delightful book in which the characteristic speculations and opinions of the great minds of the race are elucidated, contrasted and judged in a sympathetic, yet independent spirit, which forms an admirable introduction to the study of philosophy. They also announce for publication next month a work by Professor Charles H. Cooley, of the University of Michigan, entitled "Social Organization," an elaborate and systematic exposition of the relations as distinguished from the individual constitution of man and of their effect on his conduct and activities, moral and material. It is a book of marked interest, even fascination, for the lay reader as well as for the economic student, beginning with the consideration of mind as an organic whole from which it specially deduces, through a discussion of public consciousness, the moral value of the larger and organic views of social obligation and the implication that "reform should be based on sympathy." Professor Cooley has for many years been a first-hand investigator of social phenomena of a very wide range, and his observations have been as acute as his use of them has been scientific and suggestive.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

ILLUSTRATED BOOKS FOR TRAVEL LOVERS

ITALIAN HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS FROM A MOTOR CAR

By FRANCIS MILTOUN

Author of "In the Land of Mosques and Minarets," "Castles and Chateaux of Old Touraine," "The Automobilist Abroad," etc. With eight colored plates and fifty other illustrations, cover design and minor decorations from drawings by Blanche McManus, maps and index. 8vo, cloth decorative, boxed$3.00

The announcement of a new book of travel by Mr. Miltoun is sure to prove pleasant news to those who have read his previous volumes.

MOTOR TOURS IN WALES AND THE BORDER COUNTIES

By MRS. RODOLPH STAWELL

With upwards of seventy full-page illustrations in duogravure, map and an exhaustive index. 8vo. Decorative cover and wrapper. In a box.....$2.50

A beautiful volume of travel covering a most interesting and comparatively untravelled part of Great Britain, and the most delightful country in the world, with its towns, villages, historic spots and solitary ruins. The work is a magazine of varied information and charming description, interspersed with sprightly historical anecdote.

THE SPELL OF ITALY

By CAROLINE ATWATER MASON

Author of "A Lily of France," "The Little Green God," etc. With frontispiece in color and forty-eight other illustrations in duogravure and decorative end leaves and title. 8vo, cloth, decorative, boxed.....$2.50

The present volume includes visits to Naples, Capri, Rome, Padua, Florence, Milan, the Italian Lakes, and a protracted stay at the baths of Lucca. The work is a delightful combination of travel and history, together with a review of the literature available to English readers, a chapter on the Italian poets, and one on general hints to the traveller in Italy, which renders the book of especial value to prospective tourists.

FROM CAIRO TO THE CATARACT

By BLANCHE M. CARSON

One volume, large 12mo, with forty-eight full-page illustrations in duogravure from photographs taken by the author. Cloth, decorative, boxed. $2.50

An unusually charming narrative of a journey through the better known parts of Egypt.

The author has the happy faculty of bringing to the reader's attention only the things that are really worth while, and of imparting their historical relation in the most interesting way.

FICTION

NOW SELLING

DAVID BRAN

By MORLEY ROBERTS

Author of "Rachel Marr," "The Idlers," etc. With frontispiece in color by Frank T. Merrill.....$1.50

Similar in theme to Mr. Roberts' "Rachel Marr," which took the literary world by storm five years ago.

"David Bran" bespeaks the hand of a master fictionist. . . . For strong situations, for unusual portrayal of characters, and for beauty of writing, "David Bran" has few equals to-day."

—Cleveland Town Topics.

A GENTLEMAN OF QUALITY

By FREDERIC VAN RENSSELAER DEY

Author of "The Magic Story," etc. Cloth decorative, illustrated.....$1.50

A thrilling tale of mistaken identity, the scene of which is laid for the most part in England of the present day.

"Better than 'The Masquerader'" is the opinion of one who read advance proofs.

FOR APRIL PUBLICATION

THE MYSTERY OF MISS MOTTE

By CAROLINE ATWATER MASON

Author of "The Binding of the Strong," etc. Illustrated.....$1.25

Mrs. Mason's story is a delightful combination of mystery and romance, the heroine being a young woman of remarkable personality and charm.

THE QUEST FOR THE ROSE OF SHARON

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Marathon Mystery," "The Holladay Case," etc. Illustrated....$1.25

A fascinating tale of mystery written in a quaint and charming style.

FOR MAY PUBLICATION

THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER and MASON CORNER FOLKS

By CHARLES FELTON PIDGIN

Author of "Quincy Adams Sawyer," etc. Illustrated.....$1.50

Some eight years ago "Quincy Adams Sawyer and Mason's Corner Folks" was published, being heralded, truthfully, as the work of an "unknown author." The book met with instant recognition by the critics and public, and proved one of the "best sellers" in recent years. The present story has all the popular appeal of the earlier book and should repeat its success.

JUVENILE

Something the Little Colonel Lovers Have Long Wanted

THE LITTLE COLONEL GOOD TIMES BOOK

Uniform in size with the Little Colonel Series. Bound in linen and gold.....$1.50

The publishers have had many inquiries from readers of the Little Colonel books as to where they could obtain a "Good Times Book" such as Betty kept. Mrs. Johnston, who has for years kept such a book herself, has gone enthusiastically into the matter of the material and format for a similar book for her young readers.

The STANDARD DOMESTIC SCIENCE COOK-BOOK

Queen of the Household

Mothers and Brides will want it because it points the way to correct house-keeping. Chefs and Caterers will want it as a correct guide to judicious buying, choice cooking and proper service. Invalids will want it because it gives appropriate recipes for the sick and convalescent. Schools teaching domestic science will want it because it gives the rules of household management, plain and fancy needlework, the art of crocheting, knitting, sewing, as well as the proper management of the laundry.

THE STANDARD DOMESTIC SCIENCE COOK BOOK, by WILLIAM H. LEE and JENNIE A. HANSEY, marks the world's advance in the culinary art. It covers the entire field. No art or science is more important to good health, happiness and the general welfare than the art of cooking and proper seasoning.

This Wonderful Book contains over 1400 recipes, 536 pages, 32 departments, 135 special drawings, 16 full-page color plates; bound in full leather, marbled edges, patent thumb index to departments. In a box (Gift Edition), $2.50

Beautiful washable Keratol Edition, red edges. 536 pages. 14 full-page pen drawings, two colored plates, patent thumb indexed, 1.50

Durable washable oil cloth, plain edges, illustrated. 536 pages. 1.00

POWERFUL ENDORSEMENTS

Cookery is a science and ought to be given more attention in the home. The individual needs of a family should be studied and food prepared for them according to their needs and the amount of physical exercise they undergo. You have realized this and in a clear and concise way have given a great deal of information that makes your cook book a valuable one. The way it is indexed and the arrangement also is very good.—Mrs. WM. W. GAAR, Pres. Associated Clubs of Domestic Science.

The art of housekeeping has advanced to a higher plane under the rule of domestic science, and the literature of the household has received a valuable addition to its practical books in the shape of THE STANDARD DOMESTIC SCIENCE COOK BOOK.—EVENTS.

A Book for General Use
and Special Occasions

One would think that the ingenuity of cook-book makers had long since been exhausted, but THE DOMESTIC SCIENCE COOK BOOK wins the prize for originality.—THE INTERIOR.

KANT'S THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE. By H. A. PRICHARD.

8vo, cloth, $2.15.

This book is an attempt to think out the nature and tenability of Kant's Transcendental Idealism, an attempt animated by the conviction that even the elucidation of Kant's meaning, apart from any criticism, is impossible without a discussion on their own merits of the main issues which he raises.

A HISTORY OF CANADA 1763-1812. By Sir C. P. LUCAS,

WELSH MEDIEVAL LAW. Being a Test of the Laws of Howell the Good, namely: The British Museum Harleian MS. 4353 of the 13th Century, with Translation, Introduction, Appendix, Glossary, Index, and a Map. By A. W. WADE-EVANS. Cr. 8vo, cloth, $2.90.

A NATURALIST IN TASMANIA. By GEOFFREY SMITH, M.A.

With illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

These sketches in Tasmanian natural history are the result of a six months' stay in Tasmania during the Spring and Summer of 1907-08, with the object of studying especially the fresh-water life of Tasmania.

THE END AT LAST

A 5th DEFEAT

FOR

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.

GEO. W. OGILVIE has again, on March 17, 1909, defeated G. & C. Merriam Co., in the suit started by him against them in August, 1904, in the United States Courts in Boston. The basis of the suit was that the Merriam Co. falsely claimed the exclusive right to publish Webster dictionaries. Mr. Ogilvie published so good and strongly competitive a dictionary—WEBSTER'S IMPERIAL—that the Merriams were frightened at the prospective competition, and running amuck threatened everybody with suit that published a Webster Dictionary or offered for sale any "Webster" not issued by themselves.

Mr. Ogilvie started his suit asking for an injunction restraining the Merriam Co. from claiming any "exclusive right" to the "Webster" name, and an injunction was granted against G. & C. Merriam Co., their agents and attorneys, FOREVER preventing a repetition of any such nonsensical claim.

The first decision being adverse, and consequently unsatisfactory to the Merriams, they appealed from it; and as decision after decision went against them kept on appealing—hoping against hope that they could gain their point. The decision of March 17th, 1909, IS FINAL. Their defeat is absolute on the point at issue. Never again will book-sellers be annoyed by the G. & C. Merriam Co. in any such manner as before.

THE INJUNCTION REMAINS IN FULL FORCE AND EFFECT. Thus end four years and eight months of probably the most virulent and vituperative statements and false claims ever made by any American publisher.

No parallel case has ever existed, and this decision has so clarified the atmosphere that there will never be another like it.

The Webster Dictionaries, formerly published by Geo. W. Ogilvie, are now issued by
